

Crop Rotation Is Advised by Agriculturist

Expert Claims San Jose Scale Has Been A Blessing to Fruit Grow- ing Industry—Women Hear Good Lectures at Walhonding Exten- sion School.

Reports from the Walhonding Agricultural Extension School Thursday indicated sustained interest in the sessions and an attendance of more than a hundred. During the afternoon the high school boys were dismissed from the school session in order to allow them to attend the cattle judging demonstration conducted by Mr. Pollock.

The morning session was opened by Mr. Hanger who discussed Fertilizers. Fertilizers, consisting of ground rock, he stated, were treated with sulphuric acid using an equal amount of each by weight. The result was the fertilizing sulphates. The following comparative potash percentages were given: wood ashes, 2 to 8 percent; kainit, 12 to 20 percent; muriate of potash, 50 percent; and sulphate of potash, 53 percent. He pointed out that the farmer need not worry about a lack of potash elements in his land, and gave the following figures for the makeup of an acre of soil: 3500 pounds nitrogen; 3000 pounds phosphoric acid; 60,000 pounds of potash.

Mr. Pollock took up the remainder of the morning session with a discussion of Silos and Ensilage. He declared that the silo had revolutionized the dairy and beef industry in Ohio. Seventy percent, he added, of the feed fed to a dairy animal goes toward the building up of the body and Ohio corn is more nutritious than southern grown corn.

Cut Corn Early

The ripeness of the corn the harder to pack in the silo, Mr. Pollock continued, and as corn is the best ensilage, it should be cut before too ripe. It is better than clover hay, or soy beans as the latter does not keep so well as corn. Ensilage should be cut fine as it packs and keeps better. It should be stored in an air tight silo, which is high rather than wide, with a smooth surface inside, and solid construction. The kind of a silo to be built, he declared, must be determined according to the amount to be invested.

Judge Cattle

The first part of the afternoon program was devoted to an illustration of the method of judging dairy cattle and the explanation of the use of the score card. These cards were provided for each of the men enrolled in the course and a trial judging was made, following a talk by Mr. Pollock in which he pointed out the essentials to be observed in picking dairy stock.

The remainder of the afternoon was taken up with the discussion of the Rotation of Crops by Mr. Hanger who took as the keynote of his talk the maxim: "If you want to make the old farm fatter, stuff it with organic matter." He declared that soil full of humus matter retained moisture longer and that dark soil was better in this respect than that which was light in color. He also stated that it is easier to buy cheap land he would go east instead of west—that the farmed-to-death lands of the east could be re-juvenated at a paying basis. The San Jose scale has been a blessing in disguise, was one of his startling statements, and was explained by calling attention to the fact that experiments to eliminate the scale had led to discoveries and better fruit.

Good Results

A plot of land planted in corn for fifteen successive years showed an average yield of 10 bushels per year, he stated, as he reverted directly to the subject of rotation, while another plot on which corn, wheat and clover were rotated showed an average of 31 bushels. This he declared was an illustration of the value of the rotation of crops. The following four year rotations were given as recommended: corn, soy beans, wheat (Continued On Page 8.)

In 1865 she was again married, this time to J. D. Baker and to this union were born five children, all of whom survive. In her youth she joined the Plainfield M. P. church and was an active church worker until infirmities rendered unable to longer continue in service. She was also an active member of the Woman's Relief Corps.

The sons and daughters, who with the aged father are left to mourn her loss are: Mrs. Lewis Bassett, Lorain street; Mrs. E. V. Lathrop, Chestnut street; Lewis Baker, Plainfield; B. L. Baker, Roscoe; J. R. Baker, Newcomerstown, and George Newell, Newcomerstown.

Austin Writes To The Tribune

William Austin, late of this city, but now in Terre Haute, Indiana, from the address appended to a communication to The Tribune, takes decided exception to a recent editorial appearing in these columns to the effect that he, Austin, had not paid his pen for dead work at Local No. 2071 because his son's and for some time unexplained delinquency.

Austin avers that there was no dead work "turned in" to him, "and that the committee had better clear their own hands of debt before taking action on anybody else as there is plenty of money to pay all claims if turned in."

State Will Expend $32,000 to Con- tinue Improvement of Road to Within Mile of West Lafayette— Contract to be Completed During The Summer.

That the improvement of the West Lafayette road will be continued to a point about one mile west of that village was learned yesterday when County Surveyor A. H. C. Shaw commenced a survey of the road.

The work will be done by the state no county money being used for the purpose. There is about $32,000 to the credit of this county in the state fund and Surveyor Shaw said last night that the amount would probably be used entirely in the West Lafayette road improvement.

Brick And Macadam

The Coshocton Construction Co. is under contract to complete the improvement of 1.80 miles of the road commencing at the east corporation line of this city, by August 1 and the additional improvement work will commence where the work now being done stops. The improvement now being made consists of one mile of brick paving, commencing at the city limits, and the remainder of the distance bituminous bound macadam. The bituminous bound macadam will probably be used in making the additional improvement.

Warsaw Road Next

County Surveyor Shaw said last night that the contract will probably be let next June and work will be commenced immediately so that the improvement can be completed during the summer. "This improvement," he said, "will probably be the last in that section of the county. When funds from the one mill levy are available, the improvement of the Warsaw road will be taken up."

Bar Association Committee To Investigate Statement of Judge Frank Ashman Today

It was announced last night that the long deferred investigation of an article appearing in The Tribune February 3, 1916, by a committee of bar association members appointed by Judge Glenn to ascertain whether or not contempt of court proceedings should be instituted, will be held this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in the common pleas court room.

The article to be investigated is a statement issued by Probate Judge Frank Ashman after Neal Bradford and Joe Duffy had been released from the county jail where they were being held pending sentence on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a 16 year old girl, by Judge James Glenn in common pleas court on writs of habeas corpus.

On February 5, two days after the article was published, Judge Glenn called a meeting of the bar association and appointed as an investigation committee: T. H. Wheeler, chairman; C. B. Hunt, George D. Klein, J. L. McDowell and L. S. Leech.

The Journal Entry.

The following entry was made on the common pleas court journal in regard to the proceedings:

"The attention of the court having been called to the publication of a certain article published in The Coshocton Morning Tribune, published and circulated in Coshocton county, Ohio, it is therefore ordered that Thomas H. Wheeler, Charles B. Hunt, George D. Klein, Joseph L. McDowell and Lloyd S. Leech, attorneys at law, and members of the bar of said county, be and hereby are appointed and constituted a committee and said persons as such committee are directed to consider and ascertain the language contained in a certain printed statement published in the Coshocton Morning Tribune on February 3rd, 1916, purporting to have been a statement of one Frank Ashman and to report to this court the language uttered if any; by whom it was uttered if by any person, the language published; by whom it was published; whether, in the judgment of said committee, such language as uttered was in contempt of court and whether the publication of said article was in contempt of court.

"And further, said committee is commanded to report, whether, in the opinion and judgment of said committee, proceedings in contempt should be instituted against any of the persons connected with said newspaper and responsible for said statement, or for said publication."

"Approved:

Germans Renew Verdun Attacks On Smaller Scale

Attempt to Break Thru the French Lines—Fort Vaux, Five Miles From Verdun, Is Destroyed— Soldiers Hampered by Floods And Mud.

Paris, March 2.—The German offensive at Verdun has been resumed after a brief halt, but apparently no, on the scale or with the force exerted during the early days of the drive.

The offensive was reopened on the plan of the Woivreux, east of Verdun, where the Germans have worked at several points to the base of the heights of the Meuse, pausing before the strong French positions that crown the ridge to the west of the plan.

In an apparent attempt to break the French line near the southern end of the 12-mile front along which their recent advance in this region was pressed, the Germans made a drive on the French at Fresnes, ten miles south east of Verdun, and succeeded in penetrating the French positions at some points. Paris, however, declared that they were promptly ejected in a counter-attack.

French Take Offensive.

The French themselves took the offensive at Doncourt, four miles northeast of Verdun, the outlying fort captured last week by the crown prince's Brandenburg troops, and since reported to be held by several hundred German's cut off thru a subsequent French advance. Berlin announces that the attacks were fruitless, only resulting in useless sacrifices of French troops. The Berlin statement does not mention the Fresnes operation, the Verdun situation being otherwise covered in the general statement that conditions along the Franco-Belgian front remain unchanged.

Ft. Vaux Destroyed.

An Amsterdam dispatch says that Ft. Vaux, 5 miles northeast of Verdun, has been destroyed by heavy mortars, according to unconfirmed German reports, but that the Germans cannot approach the fort, as the French have brought heavy artillery to bear on the fort.

That the check inflicted upon the troops of the Crown Prince north of Verdun was seriously felt, is shown by an order of the day, issued by the German commander before the battle began. It was printed in the Echo de Paris and states that "the crown prince expects to see the Germans masters of Verdun before the first day of March."

Such a victory, says the order, would be the last big offensive movement the Germans would have to make, because it would open the way to victory and an honorable peace.

Wilson Denies 'War Charge' By Senator Gore

Washington, March 2.—President Wilson late this afternoon authorized a statement denying that any utterance which he might have made might be interpreted as indicating he was not unfavorable to war with Germany. The statement follows:

"When the attention of the White House was called to certain statements in Senator Gore's speech this afternoon, the president authorized an unqualified denial of any utterance to which any such meaning could be attached."

Surprise was expressed by close friends of the president at what was termed "misconstruction" of the conference held by the president with the party leaders preparatory to the clash in congress. It was stated on good authority that what actually occurred at the conference referred to by Senator Gore in the senate this afternoon was practically as follows:

When the president called Senators Kern and Stone and Representative Flood to the White House he told them that, up to the present, he had been depending upon the voice of the people to guide him in this crisis and keep the country at peace.

Just when the country's relations with Germany reached a crisis, he went on, congress had broken over and given every indi-on the approaches.

It is added that a German battery has been destroyed by French shells and that the Germans have concentrated 90,000 men near Buzzy, who are to resume the offensive with reinforcements in the Argonne. Buzzy is about 16 miles to the east of Verdun.

Critics Are Divided.

Military critics are divided over the plans of the German general staff. Some hold that the drive against the French fortress of Verdun was merely a gigantic feint to cover an attack which is in preparation against the Anglo-French front at the northern end of the line.

The Kaiser still clings to the fond belief that Calais can be taken, it is said.

Other military experts believe that the German offensive around Verdun will be resumed with redoubled vigor and that the Germans will again launch fresh masses of men against the French positions after a long-sustained and smashing cannonade.

Hampered By Floods.

Floods and mud, following the thaw of snow, have made fighting conditions for infantry very bad around Verdun, and this was said to be one of the reasons why the Germans allowed their attacks to lapse.

That the check inflicted upon the troops of the Crown Prince north of Verdun was seriously felt, is shown by an order of the day, issued by the German commander before the battle began. It was printed in the Echo de Paris and states that "the crown prince expects to see the Germans masters of Verdun before the first day of March."

Report Cruiser Roon Or Raider Meowe Captured

Buenos Ayres, March 2.—Press dispatches from Montevideo say that a steamer arriving from Europe intercepted near the coast of Brazil a wireless message stating that British cruisers had captured the German auxiliary cruiser Meowe.

The Meowe, it is said, was taken by the British cruisers to Trinity island.

The American steamer Santa Barbara has arrived at Montevideo, her captain making the announcement that a French cruiser which put out from Dakar on the west coast of Africa, encountered a German raider, name not given, and opened fire on her.

Under cover of darkness, the German ship got away. She was, however, damaged on her upper works by the French fire.

May Be The Roon.

There is some doubt, however, as to the identity of the German vessel reported to have been captured. Another version of the account is that the vessel in question is the German cruiser Roon.

The Meowe first came into prominence with the arrival at Hampton Roads several weeks ago of the British steamship Appam, in charge of a German prize crew. She bore word of a mysterious German commerce raider, the Meowe, which was claiming the seas and has captured and sunk seven British merchantmen and admiralty transport, in addition to capturing the Appam.

Dispatches from the Canary islands late last month, reported the arrival of the British steamer Western with a German prize crew on board, said to be from the Meowe. According to these reports the Meowe, continuing her activities after the capture of the Appam and the seven other British vessels, between January 16 and February 2, sank five British steamers off the coast of Brazil.

Vigorous Search Made.

A vigorous search for the Meowe was begun by the British admiralty. The Meowe was reported to be a tramp steamship fitted with guns for preying on commerce of the belligerent allies.

The German cruiser Roon was said to have escorted the Meowe when the latter captured the Appam. A report that the Roon had been captured by the British cruiser Drake off Bermuda was published last month, but subsequently was denied.

The island of Trinidad is one of the British West Indies lying off the coast of Venezuela.

Plan of U. S. Forts Found

New York, March 1.—Plans of United States fortifications have been found in the possession of Richard von Arend and Rudolph von Kracht, two young Germans arrested here on a charge of operating the mails to swindle, according to a statement made today by Assistant United States District Attorney E. W. McDonald.

Von Arend and von Kracht, who claim, according to the federal authorities to be German army lieutenants, were arraigned before a United States commissioner here today.

According to postoffice inspectors, the two men had conducted a systematic begging campaign thru the mails, asking for help on the ground that they were destitute German army officers. They are said to have refused the aid of representatives of charity organizations because they did not wish to make public their antecedents as required by such organizations.

Von Arend and von Kracht were held in $5000 bail each for a hearing Saturday. They denied ever having had any plans of American forts and said the only thing answering such a description that they owned were pictures sent them from Germany by relatives.

"I am willing to give a vote of confidence to the president," said General Sherwood, who has fought the preparedness program tooth and nail.

MARK TWAIN'S PILOT DAYS.

A Taste For Fine Clothes and a Plunge Into Languages.

Old pilots of that day remembered Samuel Clemens as a slender, fine looking man, well dressed, even dandified, generally wearing blue serge, with fancy shirts, white duck trousers and patent leather shoes. A pilot could do that, for his surroundings were speckless.

The pilots regarded him as a great reader—a student of history, travels and the sciences. In the association rooms they often saw him poring over serious books.

He began the study of French one day in New Orleans when he discovered a school of languages where French, German and Italian were taught, one in each of three rooms. The price was $25 for one language or three for $50. The student was provided with a set of conversation cards for each and was supposed to wait from one apartment to another, changing his nationality at each threshold.

The young pilot, with his usual enthusiasm, invested in all three languages, but after a few round trips decided that French would do. He did not return to the school, but kept the cards and added textbooks. He studied faithfully when off watch and in port, and his old river notebook, still preserved, contains a number of advanced exercises neatly written out.—Albert Bigelow Paine in St. Nicholas.

England's Greatest Mine Fire.

The most serious colliery fire ever known in Britain was undoubtedly that which broke out in the Tawd valley mine, near Preston, in 1872. Thousands of pounds were spent in trying to get the flames under control, but they overcame everything and consumed some millions of tons of coal. A wall ten feet in thickness was built round the affected parts, but the heat cracked the masonry and brought it down as fast as it was rebuilt. However, in 1897 the river Tawd overflowed its banks and went pouring down into the mine. No fire could withstand such an immense volume of water hurled upon it, and although the flames extended for 500 yards, they were quenched after having razed for a quarter of a century.—London Tit-Bits.

The associations in all parts of the world are holding similar observances, which come to a grand climax tomorrow, on the actual anniversary. The parent organization, founded in Boston on March 3, 1866, is still a lively feature of Boston life. Its principal celebration is a pageant depicting the early efforts, the development of the present and the hopes for the future. In the "Scenes of Progress," five decades of development are shown. In the east "The Girl of 1866" is depicted by Miss Juanita Tichenor of Chattanooga, and "The Girl of 1916" by Miss Katherine Wells of Chelsea, Mass. The parent organization of the 1000 similar associations thruout the country is headed by Mrs. Benjamin Tenney.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 1.—Dorance roses—blooms which are known in all the flower markets of the east for their perfection—are the product of a woman's horticultural skill and a woman's business ability. The big rose houses just across the river from this city are conducted by Miss Anne Dorance. As a girl she took keen interest in her father's rose garden. Tucked away in a corner of her brain was the belief that she could find a market for the choicest blooms, so she took a course in practical gardening and floriculture. In addition to conducting her big business, she is active in civic affairs and is a member of the school board.

New York, March 1.—Literary circles are discussing the suit brot against Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, the famous writer, by Mrs. Annie Prall Fahnestock of Washington, wife of Mrs. Burnett's nephew. It is not known whether Mrs. Burnett will return from England to appear in the proceedings, which are based on a letter which the authoress wrote terminating her acquaintance with the plaintiff.

Topeka, Kans., March 1.—On a platform advocating prohibition, nation-wide suffrage, mothers' pensions, recall of judges, old age pensions, national rural credits, laws for farm tenants, tariff for revenue, government aid in road building, Dr. Eva Harding is seeking the congressional nomination.

New York, March 1.—This city is to have another hotel for self-supporting women. It is to be named the Hotel Irvin, after Mrs. Richard Irvin, president of the organization. The women have bot the land, and will build a magnificent structure, to shelter 400 working girls and supplement the Hotel Virginia, which has been forced to turn away many girls during the past year. The new hotel will be located in West Thirtieth street, and it is said that within a comfortable walking distance of it fully 50,000 girls are employed.

Chicago, March 1.—Thirty women lawyers of Chicago are operating the Public Defenders' League for Girls, for the purpose of preventing any girl from being sent to jail for a first offense. The women are asking for a special girls' court, and the appointment of a woman as associate judge. The women attorneys are volunteering their time to this special court, to see that young women offenders get a fair chance to reform.

Saved Her Life

The unqualified endorsement of Fruitola and Traxo in a recent letter from Mrs. B. Grindle, 5018 Mignonette St., Pittsburgh, Pa., will be of interest to other sufferers from stomach and intestinal troubles. Mrs. Grindle says:

"The doctors had given me up, saying the only hope left was an operation. I tried Fruitola and passed hundreds of gall-stones with the first two bottles. Am now feeling better than I have for years past. I will be glad to tell any sufferer how it has helped me, for I owe my life to it."

Fruitola possesses properties that act directly upon the intestinal parts, softening the congested waste and disintegrating the hardened particles that cause so much suffering, and expels the accumulation to the great relief of the patient. Traxo is a tonic-alterative that acts on the liver and kidneys, stimulates the flow of gastric juices, to aid digestion and removes bile from the general circulation. It serves to build up the weakened, run-down system.

For the convenience of the public, arrangements have been made to supply Fruitola and Traxo through representative druggists. In Coshocton they can be obtained at Wimmer-Arnold Drug Co.

FOUR WEEKS IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Brown Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"For years I suffered so sometimes it seemed as though I could not stand it any longer. It was all in my lower organs. At times I could hardly walk, for if I stepped on a little stone I would almost faint. One day I did faint and my husband was sent for and the doctor came. I was taken to the hospital and stayed four weeks but when I came home I would faint just the same and had the same pains."

A friend who is a nurse said for me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it that very day for I was suffering a great deal. It has already done me more good than the hospital. To anyone who is suffering as I was my advice is to stop in the first drug-store and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before you go home."

—Mrs. W. C. Brown, 1169 Auburn Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

Backache Just Like a Toothache!

Dear Mr. Editor—Sometime ago I had backache very bad; it would ache just like a toothache. I tried a new discovery of Doctor Pierce's, called "Anuric." This is for kidneys and backache. I soon felt relieved of all backache and had no more pain, and I hope others troubled in the same way will try this wonderful new remedy.

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) Mrs. LINCOLN STEARNS.

NOTE: It is now asserted with confidence that those painful effects due to uric acid in the system are entirely eradicated. A new remedy, called "Anuric," has been discovered by Dr. Pierce, and is the cause of a drainage outward of the uric acid with which it comes in contact within the body. It will ward off backache, rheumatism, and the darting pains and aches of articular or muscular rheumatism of those diseases which are caused by too much uric acid, such as gout, asthma, sciatica, renal calculus. "Anuric" promotes life because old people usually suffer from hardening and thickening of the walls of the arteries, due to the excess of uric acid in the blood and tissues.

Dr. Pierce, who is director and chief physician at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has been testing this wonderful medicine for the relief of over-worked and weakened kidneys. The relief obtained by sufferers has been so satisfactory that he determined to place "Anuric" with the principal druggists in town where people could get this ready-to-use medicine. "Anuric" is not harmful or poisonous, but aids nature in throwing off those poisons within the body which cause so much suffering, pain and misery. Science asserts, this remedy is 37 times more potent than bicarbonate of soda.

For Diabetes and Bright's Disease this remedy is building up a reputation as good as Dr. Pierce's other well-known medicines which have been proven reliable during nearly fifty years of use.

It is sold by all druggists, but for full particulars, send for free booklet, "Anuric," to Dr. J. C. Pierce, Medical Department, Little, Brown & Co., Boston, Mass.

Everyone Interested in Better Babies, Particularly Mothers, Will Attend Our Second

The Weighing Contest

will be conducted in very much the same manner as our previous one. The Commercial National Bank will start a savings account of $1.00 for the winners in each class, and these prizes will be awarded to both the lightest and heaviest babies in each class, so that all babies will have a chance to win.

The classes will be arranged according to age, as follows: Class 1—3 months and under; Class 2—3 months to 6 months; Class 3—6 months to 1 year; Class 4—1 year to 2 years; Class 5—2 years to 3 years; Class 6—3 years to 4 years.

In addition to the above, one grand prize of $5 will be given by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. to the baby showing the greatest gain in weight for the time intervening between our "Baby Days" celebration of last year and this one starting Saturday.

Of course, only the babies who were entered last year are eligible to enter this special prize contest, so you mothers who brought your babies the last time, should be sure and do so again this year—maybe your "snookums" can win this special $5 prize. We have kept all our records from last year in anticipation of just such a special weighing contest and we look for some lively rivalry. All weighing will be done between 9 o'clock a. m. and 5:30 p. m. except Saturday when the time will be extended to 9 o'clock p. m.

The Special Literature

which will be distributed, has been obtained from the National Children's Bureau and various other Child's Welfare Societies. Included is a book compiled by Dr. L. Emmett Holt, of which every mother should have a copy.

Is The Stork Hovering Near

at your home? If so, these special books, pamphlets, etc., will prove very instructive, for they deal with all stages of motherhood.

Celebration to be Held in Connection With National Baby Week, Starting Sat., March 4th

So great was the enthusiasm accorded our first "Baby Days" celebration, held in July of last year, that we decided then to make this an annual event; and in order to make our second one another great success, we have "joined forces" with the Federation of Women's Clubs and will celebrate the occasion this year in connection with the National Baby Week movement, which has struck such a responsive chord in every section of this great country. Special features will prevail, including a weighing contest, displays of proper clothing, distribution of literature pertaining to the welfare and comfort of babies, special exhibits sent us by the National Children's Bureau Society of Washington, and many other things of vast importance to all mothers. A competent nurse, (in costume) assisted by members of the Federation will have complete charge of the Infants' Booth and the weighing contests. Everything possible will be done for the comfort of the mothers and babies and everyone is cordially invited to come and have a jolly time watching the babies "get weighed." Read further for more definite information.

A Great Array of New Spring "Baby Things" Will be Displayed both in the window and throughout the store during "Baby Days."

The New Novelties

include the daintiest hand painted and ribbon tied Rattles, Teething Sticks, Bath Thermometers, Teething Rings, Coat Hangers, Carriage Straps, Powder Puffs, Armlets, Trinket Boxes, Pin Holders, Storks and a big variety of Dolls. Popular prices prevail throughout this Novelty Section.

The Staple Needs

consist of "Vanta," "Burkland," "Reuben," "Duofold" and "Carter's" Underwear; all grades of Hosiery; "Omo" and "Leemax" Diapers and Pants; Embroidery Flouncings, Diaper Cloth, White Outing, "Vanta" twistless tape and everything you would expect to find in a good store.

The Fancy Things

include the prettiest and sweetest line of new Sacques, Booties, Sweaters, Afghans, Bibs, Dresses, Coats, etc., ever brought to Coshocton. Particularly attractive are the articles hand embroidered in colors. The price range is extensive and yet popular.

Rubber Balloons Free

Hundreds and hundreds of bright colored rubber balloons will be given free to the babies and children—but only to those who are under 6 years of age and accompanied by a grown person.

50c Gowns & Sleepers

The entire line of Infants' Outing Gowns and Sleepers, priced regularly at 50c will be offered during "Baby Days" at 39c. With several weeks more of winter sure to come, this is a most opportune offer.

"Baby Days" is an exclusive event in Coshocton at this store!

Coshocton's Busiest, Best Store

applies to the contest which is open only to those babies who were entered in our first weighing contest, and we hope all the mothers of these babies will arrange to bring them back and enter them for this special prize. This $5 prize will be awarded regardless of class, so that all these babies have an equal chance to win.

This Celebration Will Be Held For Four Days Only

Saturday, March 4th to Wednesday, March 8th—Please keep these dates in mind and be here with your baby in time.

A GOOD BILL AND A GOOD MAN BACK OF IT

In Robert Grosser of the Twenty-first district Ohio has an able member of the house of representatives. Grosser is more than an able man; he is an extremely useful man. He has put his ability at the command of the people of the whole country. He is more than a Democrat. He is a fundamental democrat.

There has been much talk for the past decade of solving "the problem of the unemployed." There is an increasing amount of talk on this subject, because the best economists of this country—and of Europe, too, before the war began—who have been devoting time and thought to arriving at the real causes of involuntary poverty and the best means to eliminate it.

Representative Grosser has actually made a move in the direction of a practical and permanent solution of this, perhaps the greatest problem that can possibly confront the state—and church—and, in fact, society as a whole, the elimination of involuntary poverty from this old world of ours.

Other congressmen have professed interest in the problem of the unemployed. Grosser offers them an opportunity to get their feet wet here and now without further oratory and vain speculation. He has introduced a bill which is perfectly feasible and sane, a bill that will go further than any other plan the ingenuity of congress can devise, a bill that is not revolutionary and a bill that we feel sure Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln would support, were they alive and members of congress.

There is no so-called philanthropy in the Grosser bill. There is no charity in it. IT IMPOSES NO NEW TAXES. It merely provides for a practical application of the plan proposed in the recent admirable report of the Department of Labor. It is so fair a measure that the vote on it, if the representatives of Privilege and Monopoly in congress ever permit it to come to a vote, will be a fair test of the honesty and sincerity of congressmen who profess concern about securing REAL employment for the unemployed.

In his report to Congress, the Secretary of Labor proposed opening the remaining public lands to the unemployed, under supervision of a board to be formed by the Department of Labor, of Agriculture and of the Interior. Settlers were to be helped thru a loan fund. They were to be secure in possession of the land as long as they occupied and used it. Improvements were to be exempt from taxation. But the secretary made clear that there must be no inflation of land values.

The Grosser bill provides all that the secretary of Labor recommended. It prevents inflation of land values in the only way that can be done. The Government is to retain title to all lands and take the annual rental value for its own use. That will let it be profitable to hold land for use, but not for speculation.

Under the Grosser bill opportunities for all of the unemployed will be open in occupations, such as agriculture, stock raising, lumbering and similar industries. Other industries will naturally develop. Since much of the land must first be irrigated, or otherwise prepared before it can be opened to use, the Board of Colonization, which is to supervise the matter, will have to employ men at the very beginning who will later settle on the prepared lands.

It may be said that all the unemployed are not fit for such work. Perhaps not, but many of them are, and these will reduce the number of men looking for jobs. Besides many men at work in other occupations will want to take advantage of these opportunities. Their going will leave vacancies for those unemployed men who do not want to go on the public lands. And every worker will have a sense of security hitherto unknown, in the knowledge that a steady job on the land awaits him, whosoever he may want to take it.

So there should be no delay in passing the Grosser bill. Every congressman should hear from his constituents that failure to vote for it, will be inexcusable. It is the most important bill that has so far been introduced.

MOODS

By Walt Mason

"I cannot write a poem today, I am not in the mood," I heard a long-haired poet say, a poet short on food. "Unless the inspiration comes, I can produce no spind; I sit here twaddling of my thumbs, and longing for a meal." And oft I feel privation's lash upon my person tall. O, for a plate of corn-beef hash, O, for a codfish ball!" "I can't afford such things as moods," the short-haired poet said, "and I must write the platitudes that fester in my head. Perhaps my song is not inspired, perhaps it's lacking Art, perchance it makes the highbrow tired, and breaks the purist's heart; but all the merchants in the grad are pleased to get my trade; they know that when I owe a seed, that seed is promptly paid. Each day I buckle down to work, regardless of my mood, just like a tinsmith or a clerk, with earnest zeal imbued; and then, until my muscles tire, thruout my eight-hour day, I punch the stuffing from my lyre, and make that punching pay. Should I for inspiration wait, I could not turn my back; I could not keep my credit straight, or get my meek

SOME NOTABLE BIRTHDAYS
March 3.

Right Hon. Sir Ernest Cassel, who, tho born in Germany, retains his office of Privy Councilor in England, is 64 years old today. Following a controversy in the English press as to the eligibility of Sir Ernest and Sir Edgar Speyer to serve in high office during the war, King George ousted the two financiers of German birth. Last December this action was rescinded, it having been decided by Baron Reading, lord chief justice, that as naturalized British subjects, they had all the rights and privilege of British-born subjects, and were therefore entitled to be members of the Privy Council. Feeling against the two financial leaders has subsided. Sir Ernest, who was the confidential financial adviser of King Edward, has long been identified with British royalty, British finance and British philanthropy, and no hint or evidence of treachery has been brot against him. He was born at Solagne, March 3, 1852, the son of a banker. He became interested in financial affairs in France and Sweden, and settled in London, where he married a prominent English woman. Altho prominent thru his philanthropies and interest in the affairs of his adopted country, the suspicions of the great war were turned against him. But he has found that justice triumphs over suspicion.

Hon. James W. Wise, Congressman from Georgia, 48 years old today.

omatic relations would result in a declaration of war. (This information was said to have come to the president both from Colonel House and from Ambassador Von Bernstorff thru Secretary Lansing.)

"Would that end the war?" the president was asked.

The reply is said to have been that he had been informed that America's entrance into the war would result in bringing it to an end within six months.

The president then expressed the devout hope that congress would participate no action which would hamper him in holding international law.

"God knows I have fought hard to maintain peace," the president is quoted as having said to his listeners; "and if you will help me I hope to be able to continue to do so."

Adjourn Until Friday Morning

New York, March 2.—Deadlocked in their wage conference, the soft coal operators and miners, representing Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Western Pennsylvania, adjourned just before noon until nine o'clock tomorrow morning.

There are said to be differences of opinion among the delegates of the miners, particularly those representing Indiana. In Indiana, where some miners are paid upon a run of nine basis and others are not, it is extremely difficult to fix a basis for payment. On account of a strong stand taken by both sides, there were evidences that a longer recess might be taken to allow the miners and operators to hold caucuses among themselves.

The operators have refused to grant the men's revised demand for a wage increase of three cents a ton in Indiana, Illinois and Ohio and the 5.39 cents in western Pennsylvania, but officials of the United Mine Workers of America are confident that they will be successful in securing an increase for the men.

Domestic Reports.

McGinnis is no Adonis, and his temper is in direct ratio to his lack of personal beauty. Mrs. McGinnis also is rather peppery of temper and is rather inclined to "get back" at her husband during the course of a quarrel.

One such altercation had been had the other evening, but things soon quieted down and McGinnis had regained his temper and thought his wife had too. But he was speedily undeceived.

Mac had been playing with the baby and observed, "Every time the baby looks into my face he smiles." "Well," said wife, with an ominous gleam in her eye, "it may not be exactly polite of baby, but it shows he has a sense of humor." Exchange.

BASKETBALL

SENIORS WIN

One of the roughest games of the season among the girls' teams of the High school, was that played at Central school gym, Thursday evening in which the Seniors defeated the Freshmen with a score of 3 to 2. The game was fast and fought with a determination of each team to win and for a time it looked as tho the Freshmen had the best of it, the score standing 2 to 1 at the end of the first half.

The game leaves the Seniors and Sophomores with equal chances for championship as they have each defeated the other teams and each won one game from the other. This fact promises to make the game between these two teams next Thursday evening a decidedly interesting one.

The line up for last night's game was:

Seniors	Freshmen

The Heart of Night Wind

A Story of the Great Northwest

By VINGIE E. ROE

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Silets of Dally's lumber camp watches a stranger maul a bear in the forest.

CHAPTER II—Walter Sandry introduces himself to John Dally, foreman, as "the Dillingworth Lumber Co., or most of it."

CHAPTER III—Sandry and Silets acquaintances with the camp and the work he has come from the East to superintend and CHAPTER IV—Sandry wisely decides to have immediate supervision in the hands of Silets and writes to his father that he intends to get a handful of the wealth in the forest.

CHAPTER V—Sandry gives Silets permission to ride Black Belt, his saddle horse.

CHAPTER VI—Sandry in an emergency saves himself from a lumberman, but proves to the foreman that he does not lack the nerve to lead.

CHAPTER VII—Sandry discovers that Silets is a man of great nerve and courage, and wonders what her surname is. In the flush of a tender moment he calls her "Night Wind" in the forest.

CHAPTER VIII—Poppy Ordway, a magazine writer from New York, comes to the camp to get material for a romance of the lumber region. Sandry of the Yellow Stone Co. wants Sandry to keep a log of stumpage he claims title to and Sandry thinks he has bought as the East.

CHAPTER IX—Hampton sets up a cabin on the East Belt and warns Sandry of the danger of getting into the forest.

CHAPTER X—Sandry and Hampton's men fight over the disputed tract. The foreman stops the fight.

CHAPTER XI—Sandry finds that the forest is a place of great beauty and that the East Belt has never been before.

CHAPTER XII—Poppy Ordway tricks Sandry and Hampton to gain his confidence. She tells Sandry that Hampton is crooked and that she'll get him.

CHAPTER XIII—Poppy goes to Salem in search of evidence against Hampton. She tells Sandry to get out of the forest and Silets sees the ocean for the first time. Sandry's men desert him for Hampton, who has offered more money.

CHAPTER XIV—Silets goes to her home in the Swabias and persuades them to leave the forest to save his contract. She is brilliant with excitement and flirts at great times.

CHAPTER XV—The certain Hampton's crooked, she wrote: "I've found a man who knows him—and he's in the commission's office. He's young and he's handsome and he thinks I'm one of the 'ring'! Oh, but it's exciting. I want him a tip—let's that the way you men would say it—that I had a man in view, but that I already had."

CHAPTER XVI—Hampton is in Arizona and the thing progresses. The mention of Hampton and "man" did for him—and he is all but over the brink of a fraudulent entry even now! He offered—in my case, specially—to come down in the price of my "patent" two hundred dollars—of course clandestinely; I'm to say nothing about it to the "ring"! Ye gods! I'm wild with the look. More later."

February was passing. The days of soft sunlight were becoming more frequent. The camp was humming with business. Silets, bent on the thing in hand, the Indians worked without need of encouragement.

The slough was bank-full and its surface was covered from dawn to dark with a floor of logs slowly drifting on every tide downward to the backwater.

At the slough's mouth a huge cradle was slowly forming in its braces. Here the little loading donkey puffed and tooted, grappling many-ton timbers with its two drag-hooks, placing them here and there. The mass of chains covered the bottom of the cradle a few feet apart.

Twelve men worked continually at the great marine monster, packing the logs inside the cradle, carrying the giant chains up and over as the snug floor reached the top, lacing the whole together and at last lifting the center gently, thus giving to the thing its likeness to a vast cigar.

A timber-scraper, sent down by the Portland arm, was constantly in attendance.

A shack had been thrown up at the head of the raft and a watch was kept day and night.

"We can't trust Hampton a minute," John said Sandry; "I'm learning suspicion." Indeed he was learning many things. Only John Dally in the sanity of his just nature watched this Johnny Eastern take his rough knocks and come up with his teeth set.

These two were growing together in a slow affection. The big room had, in a sense, become home to Sandry, and the evenings when Ma sat in her little rocker and Silets braided her mats with Coonsah beside her filled his soul with peace.

The preacher had slipped away as silently and mysteriously as he had come, with a blessing upon all and a promise to return—"when you shall need me, my children."

CHAPTER XV.

"There is No Law for a Genius." March came in like a lamb with delicate weather, crystal clear and opal bright, and with it came Miss Ordway. Sandry was glad to see her, but the critical point was at hand and he scarce took time to eat or sleep from the great work of the contract.

The mammoth raft was ready, the largest, according to Dally, that the camp had ever sent out in all its life, and a special boat from the Portland Mills company would lay off Yaquina to receive it on the sixteenth.

On the night of the second, Dally caught a glimmer of white on the lintel. It was a paper, stuck in with a thumb-tack.

"Watch your raft," it said, "for powder."

That was all, and it was unsigned. Dally told Sandry of the incident and showed the warning.

So for the remaining nights the great raft was lighted from end to end and four of the Indians patrolled it in shifts, armed with rifles and under orders to shoot at the first sign of trouble.

The work went forward rapidly. The Slawashes, born and raised in the timber country, knew all the work of the camp and they needed no driving. They were a godsend to Sandry in the pressing days and he came to look upon them with a wide tolerance.

"In serving you we serve Silets," he quoted to himself, "for she's your woman." And an odd sensation prickled his skin, tingled at the roots of his hair. Some way, somehow, these were Silets' people—these silent, shiftless, well-taught creatures, who made no use of their talents, yet who did hard, unnecessary labor at the call of the blood.

That night, with the raft and even the two engines under guard and all the length of track patrolled, he came in tired, worn to a thin edge with Mystery and Loneliness Pressed Upon the Wilderness.

She slipped her hand into his arm with a little, familiar gesture and turned him about.

"Come along and relax," she said, "you're almost hysterical."

"I believe I am," said Sandry wearily, though as he stepped out into the night, soft already with the breath of spring as is the way with the coast country, where the seasons shoulder each other suddenly for place, he looked uneasily for Silets.

"Let's go up to the old railway. It's deserted and I have things to tell you—oh, many things!"

She laughed, her little rippling laugh that was so soft and rich, and it soothed the man's strained nerves like a narcotic.

Miss Ordway sat down, or rather climbed up, on a log that lay beside the railway and drew her gray broadcloth aside.

Sandry settled himself beside her and took off his hat. The soft, changed breath of the night air was grateful to him.

"Who-ew! I'll be thankful when this strain is over, that raft headed out to sea and my contract fulfilled! I never knew business was so strenuous."

Miss Ordway looked at him through the dusk with admiring eyes.

"But look how you're succeeding! Why, it's great!"

"Yes—but for how much of it can I thank myself? Hampton has me in a bad hole about my great East Belt—the best timber in the region and the base, practically, of the Dillingworth's future—and but for these Indians I would be now—well, I hate to think where I'd have been!"

"You said Miss Ordway: 'not so much about that bad hole. Instead Mr. Walter Sandry, we've got your friend Hampton in the deepest hole he was ever in in all his life. In fact, when we say the word, hell turn over the East Belt with both hands.'"

Sandry held out a hand and Miss Ordway took it, not after her usual manner of half-fellow, but with a gentle, proprietary motion. She tapped your eagerness, your inherent strength and your losing battle! Did you not know that you were as fire to me?"

She slipped off the log and stood before him, her hands clasped across her breast and all her magnificent beauty a lure in the spring dusk.

"Ah!" she laughed recklessly. "You have set me flaming, like a fire of fire at night! And I care nothing that I tell you—there is no law for a genius!"

DOES YOUR STOMACH TROUBLE YOU?

And One Dose Has Often Dispelled Years of Suffering.

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy can really be termed WONDERFUL. No matter where you live—you will find people who have suffered with Stomach, Liver and Intestinal Ailments, etc., and have been restored to health and are loud in their praise of this remedy. It acts on the source and foundation of these ailments, removing the poisonous, catarrh and bile accretions, taking out the inflammation in rendering the same antiseptic. Sufferers are urged to try one dose—which alone should relieve your suffering and convince you that Mayr's Wonderful Remedy should restore you to good health. Put it to a test today. Send for booklet on Stomach Ailments to Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. Chemist, 156 Whiting St., Chicago, or better still, obtain a bottle from your druggist.

The breast of her princess gown.

"I have right here copies of filings on sixteen claims, all duly put through by 'cash entry' by as many different men—and I know that Hampton owns all these numbers, that he furnished the money for building the cabins, for filing fees, for advertising, for final proofs at the land office and for the government price of the land. In return for all this these bogus entry-men—your drifting gentry of the spiked boots and the 'turkey' in most cases—received four hundred dollars each for the breaking of their faith with the government. No wonder Hampton is rich!"

For a long moment Sandry sat in a silence so deep that he ceased to breathe. He was grasping the magnitude of the man's daring—the gigantic risk he ran with his safety in the uncertain hands of sixteen men.

And also he was beginning to comprehend wonderfully, the daring of this woman, her finesse, her cleverness and her success.

"Wonderful!" he said at last; "It is past belief! And how, for the love of heaven, did you ever wind up that commissioner to put his own head in the noose by giving you those proofs?"

Miss Ordway looked away down the fast darkening slough, and there was that in her narrowed, smiling eyes which had Sandry seen, would have shocked him from her.

"He didn't give," she said oddly; "I took."

And something in the speech silenced the man.

"Sometimes," went on this clever woman, "one will take—providing there is a great enough incentive. I had a great incentive."

She ceased, waiting, and against his will Sandry supplied the question.

"What?"

"You," said Miss Ordway in a whisper.

With her pretty, imitable gesture of daring she put up a hand, laid it against his cheek and drew his face toward her.

"Boy," she said in a curiously choked tone, as if emotion dominated her, "oh, boy! With your youth and

COULD AMERICA AID THE ALLIES?

Hard to Guess What We Would Do In Case of War

WHY CONGRESS IS PACIFIC.

Members of Both Houses Ask If We Would Send Troops to the Trenches in Flanders or Send a Fleet to Be Menaced by Submarines—Interesting Problems Presented.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, March 2.—[Special.]—Just what the United States would do in case we went to war with Germany is worth considering. Would we send our soldiers to Flanders or France to die in the trenches or be annihilated by the German guns? Would we send our navy to European waters and endanger the ships by submarines in view of the fact that England has scarcely struck a blow with her navy?

These are questions which come to the minds of men who recollect how we plunged into war with Spain without any means of making war save the naval vessels. We started in to free Cuba without a single ship to carry troops to Cuba.

The Feeling in Congress.

Conversations with congressmen show that the possibilities growing out of war with Germany caused the wave of opposition to the president's policies which came very near resulting in the passage of a resolution of a pacific nature.

The war spirit does not run high in congress. At the time of the Spanish war it was congress that went on the rampage and forced the administration unwillingly into the conflict. This was over the protest of the conservative members of both houses. It is true that there was politics in it to some extent, for one party was almost united in favor of war. But the feeling in congress is not at all like it was back in 1898.

Madden's Vain Plea.

There was a provision in the post-office appropriation bill for increasing the salaries of a number of clerks. Sisson of Mississippi was in with a point of order, a "point of order" being a weapon by which one man can defeat what is desired by the entire house with the exception of himself.

Madden of Illinois made a plea for the clerks, pointing out the increased cost of living and showing that no increase had been made for them in twenty years.

"The time has come when even the gentleman from Mississippi ought to open the windows of his heart and let a little sunshine in," said Madden.

"Do not be a pessimist; be liberal enough to do justice; do not be like a blind man going into a dark room looking for a black hat that he knew was never there."

But even that plea did not move Sisson.

The Quorum Man.

Senator Snoot is on hand when the gavel falls at the beginning of each session, and he insists that a quorum of the senate shall keep him company. He makes the point of no quorum every morning and has a roll call.

Mann and Foster.

There is a warm friendship and mutual admiration between Mann and Foster, both of Illinois, but on different sides of the political fence. But at the same time they have their fencing matches. One day Mann was criticizing the committee on rules, of which Foster is a prominent member.

"The gentleman is so alert and intelligent that he will not be taken by surprise in regard to action on this matter," said Foster.

"Nothing, no matter how bad it is, will take me by surprise, coming from the Democratic committee on rules," retorted Mann.

War and Water Power.

Discussion of the water power bill in the senate brings out some of the curlicues of our government. The proposition is for control of the water power by the secretary of war. Of course the development of water power has nothing whatever to do with war, any more than navigation or the improvement of rivers and harbors, but all come under the head of the war department. The department of commerce of the interior would be the proper place for this work. It is because army engineers handle rivers and harbors, and they are a part of navigation, that the war department has charge. Water power is intertwined with navigation or at least has been made so in the bill.

Same Old Game.

Fitzgerald and Bennett of New York were indulging in the old familiar game of the pot calling the kettle black.

"The Republicans in the Sixty-first congress passed only twenty-two special rules," said Fitzgerald in a questioning manner, "because they could not get votes on account of the insurgents."

"No," replied Bennett; "when we needed any votes to carry anything through we could get some Democrats."

The house laughed heartily at this report because of the most important matter in that congress Fitzgerald contributed enough Democratic support to enable Cannon to win.
